BEST PRACTICES (2022-2023)

1. A Survey on Female Health and Hygiene

Due to the lack of health awareness, especially female health among the community, IQAC decided to do a door-to-door survey to sensitize them about the importance of female health and hygiene. Trainees collected data based on questionnaires and interviews on 20.12.2022 from the local womenfolk and submitted reports later. The womenfolk hesitated initially to reply freely, especially to the male trainees. The trainees became aware of the importance of gender sensitization and the local people got to know about the female health hazards.

2. Pre-Seminar Workshop

One three-day workshop on “Research Methodology and Paper Presentation” was organized in which both external and internal resource persons facilitated the trainees on 05.04.23, 06.04.23 and 08.04.23. Without any prior training or experience it was very challenging for them to write seminar papers following the correct format and rules of writing. 18 seminar papers were prepared by the trainees for presentation in the International seminar and got selected for publication in an edited volume to be published.
